Please note that this list is not exhaustive and there are also debt management companies who may charge a fee for managing your debt. Some of these companies may have misleading names that sound like free money advice organisations, but are actually businesses who charge you for their services.

Please be aware if you choose a company which will charge you for their services that you understand all the fees involved before entering into any agreement. It is your responsibility to check the fees that may be charged before asking these companies to act on your behalf.
